Irwin Gasner

We have a new facilitator on board! Irwin was introduced to entrepreneurship as a young adolescent watching his father operate his textile business. His father's leadership inspired Irwin to be a strategic entrepreneur. After 4 decades, their brand became a takeover target – a carefully crafted strategic move, which was a result of his membership in a peer-to-peer advisory group. Irwin successfully negotiated his exit and is thankful for what he learned which was: “It is important to operate your business every day as if you were going to sell it, even if that is not the ultimate goal.” After departing the textile industry, Irwin became familiar with Steve Ramerini, Founder of COMPEL CEOs, who exemplified the culture and values that are vital to the art of peer advisory. He now considers himself blessed to be a part of our wonderful organization where it is all about giving back.

"As a Coach, Chair, and Facilitator for COMPEL I look forward to sharing my insights and expertise with likeminded CEOs, helping them feel less lonely at the top."
